

Mercury Insurance is one of the best companies to work for in America...just ask Forbes!

It's not just employees who are saying so—Forbes magazine recently named Mercury Insurance one of “America’s Best Mid-size Employers.”

Corporate culture, work-life balance, career opportunities, stability and management are some of the top reasons people give when searching for the right job, and Mercury checks all these boxes and more. In fact, in an independent survey conducted by Forbes and Statista, Mercury rose to the top and the company’s employees said they “would overwhelmingly” recommend the company to friends or family members.

“We’re extremely proud that Forbes has recognized Mercury’s amazing culture and I truly appreciate our entire team for making this such a wonderful place to work,” said Mercury President and CEO Gabriel Tirador. “Our culture is a big part of the Mercury experience, and knowing that our staff would recommend working here to family and friends is a tribute to what makes Mercury special.”

Mercury has been dedicated to providing our employees with the ideal workplace since opening our doors in 1962. We’re committed to giving them the chance to thrive professionally and personally. We’re also committed to our employees’ wellbeing and, in 2016, received a Limeade Limelight Award for employee engagement.
